CJI Surya Kant pulls up lawyer seeking listing of disproportionate assets case against Rahul Gandhi

New Delhi, Oct 27 : Chief Justice of India (CJI) Surya Kant on Tuesday reprimanded a lawyer seeking an urgent listing of a disproportionate assets case against Leader of Opposition in the Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi, questioning whether the move was intended to generate media attention. "There is no head, no tail to this mentioning," the CJI remarked, taking exception to the grounds cited by the lawyer for seeking an early hearing in the matter.
The lawyer sought the listing of the matter, contending that Rahul Gandhi had recently claimed at an event that he was in touch with 200 officials of the Enforcement Directorate (ED) and the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI). Responding to the submission, CJI Kant asked the lawyer, "Have you spoken to any news channel for this?"
Following the exchange, the CJI orally instructed the court staff to discontinue live streaming of the mentioning proceedings henceforth. The remarks came in the backdrop of the Supreme Court's earlier order staying proceedings before the Allahabad High Court in the disproportionate assets case and restraining the CBI and the ED from submitting any report before the High Court.
The case arises from a complaint filed by Karnataka-based BJP worker S. Vignesh Shishir, who alleged that Rahul Gandhi possessed assets disproportionate to his known sources of income. In August, the Supreme Court had asked the Allahabad High Court to defer proceedings in the matter and also restrained the central agencies from submitting any report to it.

and shortages of urea, while the government remained indifferent to their plight. Despite water flowing in rivers, the government was allowing it to drain into the sea instead of utilising it for irrigation, he charged, accusing the administration of failing to ensure that available water reached farmers.
Addressing a gathering at Telangana Bhavan on Tuesday, on the occasion of several Congress and BJP leaders from the Nirmal Assembly constituency joining the BRS, Rama Rao claimed that people were eagerly waiting for elections to bring BRS president K. Chandrashekar Rao back as Chief Minister.
"Only when we see darkness do we realise the value of light, and only when we see a donkey do we understand the value of a horse," he remarked, taking a dig at the Congress government. Recalling the BRS government's 10-year tenure under KCR, Rama Rao said it had provided 24-hour free power supply and irrigation facilities to farmers. Welfare schemes such as Rythu Bandhu, KCR Kit, Kalyana Lakshmi and Shaadi Mubarak had extended support to people across the State, he said.

He added that the BRS government had continued to support farmers even during the COVID-19 pandemic by procuring their paddy.

He proposed building a cofferdam if water levels were too low for pumping. Referring to the proposed use of sandbags to store water at the Sitarama project, he said a similar measure could be implemented at Kannepalli within a month.
Speaking at a press conference at Telangana Bhavan, Jeevan Reddy said that lifting even one TMCft of water each day would allow 150 TMCft to be pumped over five months. He called on Revanth Reddy to end the delay and make use of the available Pranahita waters.
Jeevan Reddy also criticized the government's requirement that farmers submit self-declarations when purchasing paddy seeds, saying the measure effectively discouraged cultivation. He warned that reduced cultivation would impact the entire economy and cited the increase in rice prices.
He said the Kaleshwaram project, constructed under the leadership of former Chief Minister K Chandrashekhar Rao, could provide vital assistance during the drought by meeting irrigation and drinking water needs while also supporting power generation. Questioning Revanth Reddy's recent trip to Maharashtra to discuss the Tummidihatti project, he claimed that it had produced no concrete results despite the government having been in office for nearly 30 months. He also criticized the government for not repairing existing infrastructure.

Chandrababu Naidu hits out at INDIA Bloc over SIR, EVMs

Amaravathi, Oct 27 : Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister, N. Chandrababu Naidu, on Tuesday criticised the INDIA Bloc for opposing the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of the electoral rolls and use of Electronic Voting Machines (EVMs). Stating that EVMs were introduced under the Congress government, he said the same machines were considered reliable earlier but now Opposition parties are finding fault with them after their defeat. The Telugu Desam Party (TDP) National President was addressing a joint press conference with Deputy Chief Minister and Jana Sena leader Pawan Kalyan and state BJP president P.V.N. Madhav. "When the Congress initiated the EVMs, the machines were very good. Now that you are losing elections, you are blaming the same machines. How can you justify this? Before criticising, everyone must think," he said and remarked that the Opposition parties need people's trust and not machine's trust.
He said INDIA alliance and other political parties opposing the SIR process now, must think before making allegations of irregularities in the revision of the poll rolls. Chandrababu Naidu said all the political parties have workers in villages and Booth Level Agents (BLAs) of all parties were invited to participate in the enumeration process. Booth Level Officers coordinated the process. "Have you raised any objection then? Why are you raising them now?," he said. He claimed that YSR Congress Party leader had earlier supported the SIR. The TDP chief remarked that the political parties cannot oppose SIR or criticise use of EVMs for their political convenience. Dismissing the allegations of the Opposition of alleged irregularities in the revision of the poll rolls, deletion of names of genuine voters and 'vote chori', he said unlike in the past when there used to be 'booth rigging', the presence of CCTV cameras works as a safeguard against electoral malpractices. Chandrababu Naidu appealed to people to fully support the alliance in these local body elections. "Today, we must remember that local bodies need to be strengthened. We have taken responsibility for ensuring that they receive the necessary funds. In a democracy, elections must be held at every level. Public representatives must remain accessible to the people and be responsible for getting their work done," he said. The Chief Minister said this time, they introduced direct elections in urban areas. He believes that direct elections bring stability to leadership and provide people an opportunity to elect good leaders.

He claimed that the coalition was implementing all the promises made before the elections and delivering welfare schemes that ensure justice to all sections of society.
The TDP chief said they undertook an extensive exercise in seat-sharing and candidate selection for these local body elections, even more detailed than the exercise conducted during the general elections.

Surprise inspections are okay.. but what are the changes at the field level?

- Who benefits from the visits of officials? Observations that are limited to propaganda!
- Warnings.. suggestions.. photos.. news in the newspapers! The next day, the same thing again!!

Mullangi Mohan Reddy Mahabubabad: District Correspondent Telangana Essence October 26 : Sudden inspections.. surprise visits.. are words that have been heard frequently lately. Every day, an official visit to some department, inspections, instructions and warnings to the staff.. are prominent news in the newspapers the next day! Although all this is good.. how much benefit has these visits actually brought to the people? Are problems being solved at the field level? Are the visits of officials limited to propaganda? Questions are being expressed among the people.

Inspections in hostels.. what does it bring to the students?

It is common for officials to visit student hostels unannounced, inspect the kitchen, check the quality of food, inquire about sanitation, and suggest better facilities to the staff. However, even if there is a rush on the day of the inspection, are students continuously getting quality food, a clean environment, and better facilities? That is the real question. If there is no follow-up on whether the instructions given during the inspections are implemented or not, the purpose of those visits will not be fulfilled.

Inspections of police stations.. Are victims getting justice?

It is also often seen in the news that senior officials inspect police stations unannounced, review pending cases, examine records, and direct staff. Officials suggest that the performance of the stations should improve and that the people should get speedy justice. However, are the problems of victims roaming around police stations being resolved? Are complaints being responded to in a timely manner? What is the progress in the investigation of pending cases? To what extent are these inspections contributing to providing justice to victims? There is also a need to review the issues.

No announcements on road safety. What are the field-level actions?

Officials are also frequently conducting awareness programs on road safety. They are advising people to wear helmets, have a driving license, and follow traffic rules. Announcements are being made on vehicle details, licenses, and safety standards. However, how much action is being taken at the field level on issues such as the condition of roads that cause accidents, dangerous turns, lack of street lights, and traffic control? Are permanent solutions being identified and provided to the areas where accidents occur? This is a matter that needs to be examined.

Warnings to farmers.. Where is the assurance for crops?

The situation in the agricultural sector is no different. Farmers are worried that crops are being damaged due to lack of rainfall, high temperatures, and intense sun. Keeping the weather conditions in mind, the agriculture department officials are constantly making suggestions on crop cultivation. They are saying that crops that grow with less water should be cultivated and that alternative crops should be preferred. Warnings are also being issued at the government level. However, what help is being provided to farmers if the crops that have already been cultivated are drying up? Are the conditions of the crops being assessed at the field level? Are steps being taken to resolve irrigation water problems? What progress has been made in identifying the affected farmers and providing compensation and other relief measures? Clear answers are needed to these questions. Farmers' difficulties will not be solved with mere suggestions and warnings. Only when action is taken according to the circumstances will they get some relief.

Not propaganda.. Results are the standard!

It is essential for officials to conduct inspections and visits. However, their real purpose is not to make news in the newspapers.. to provide solutions to public problems. Have the orders given on the day of inspection been implemented? Have the errors been corrected? Has justice been done to the victims? Are students getting better facilities? Are farmers getting timely assistance? Have steps been taken to reduce road accidents? There should be a clear review on these issues.

Rather than inspecting once and leaving, it is important to record the identified errors, set a deadline for resolution, inspect again, and continue monitoring the responsible officials. Only then will surprise inspections make sense.

What the people want is not the publicity of official visits.. but a permanent solution to the problems. Only when the inspections seen in the news lead to changes at the ground level will the people's trust in the government machinery increase. Otherwise, sudden visits.. warnings.. suggestions.. news in the newspapers.. and then everything will be back to the way it was, will it be like giving in to criticism.

- CPM State Secretariat Member G. Nagaiah demands

Mahabubabad, District Telangana Essence October 27: In the wake of the severe rain-shortage conditions prevailing in the state due to the effect of El Nino, CPM State Secretariat Member G. Nagaiah has demanded the Central and State governments to immediately declare Mahabubabad district as a drought-hit area. He has requested the Central Government to sanction a special package of Rs. 50 thousand crores to Telangana to prevent drought and support farmers. Nagaiah participated and spoke at the CPM Mahabubabad District Committee meeting held under the chairmanship of Gunaganti Rajanna on Tuesday.

He suggested that the State Government should immediately respond to the rain-shortage conditions prevailing in the district and take drought relief measures. He demanded that a comprehensive report be prepared on the severity of the drought conditions, damage to crops, assistance needed by farmers, etc. and proposals be sent to the central government. He also demanded that the center also release special funds without delay and cooperate in drought prevention measures in Telangana.

Irrigation water, uninterrupted power supply to save crops

Nagayya demanded that the government immediately provide irrigation water to save the paddy crop that has ripened. He suggested that steps be taken to prevent damage to paddy, cotton, chilli and other crops that are already under cultivation due to water shortage. He demanded that continuous power supply be provided to agriculture and there be no power cuts. He demanded that farmers whose crops have been damaged due to lack of rain be identified and appropriate compensation be provided.

He urged the government to provide compensation of Rs. 30,000 per acre to paddy farmers, Rs. 50,000 per acre to cotton and chilli farmers, and Rs. 20,000 per acre to farmers who have suffered losses by cultivating other crops. He said that steps should also be taken to officially identify tenant farmers and provide them with crop compensation.

Farmers' assurance should be doubled

Keeping in mind the financial difficulties faced by farmers during the drought, Nagayya demanded that the amount of farmer's assurance should be doubled. He asked that the agricultural loans taken by farmers be waived and the financial burden on them be reduced. He suggested that the employment problem in rural areas should not worsen due to the decrease in agricultural work and that the working days under the Employment Guarantee Scheme be increased to 200 days.

Special funds to prevent drinking water problem

Nagayya asked that preventive measures be taken to prevent drinking water shortage in rural and urban areas due to the impact of drought. He demanded that the government allocate special funds for drinking water supply and creation of alternative water sources. He asked that steps be taken to ensure that essential commodities are available to the people and that 12 kg of rice and 14 types of essential commodities be provided to each person on the ration card.

Rising rice prices should be controlled

Nagayya expressed concern that rice prices are increasing exponentially in the state. He asked that a special monitoring committee be formed to control the increase in prices and prevent situations that create artificial shortages. It was suggested that the government should increase monitoring to ensure that people get rice and other essential commodities at affordable prices. Nagayya urged the central and state governments to work in coordination to face the drought situation and stand by the farmers, agricultural workers and the common people.

CPM District Secretary Sadhula Srinivas, District Secretariat members Shetty Venkanna, Surnapu Somaiya, Akula Raju, Alwala Veeraiah, Kandunuri Srinivas, Kunta Upender and others participated in this meeting.

₹7.5 Crore Telangana Public School to Come Up in Nellikuduru

Funds should be sanctioned immediately and work should start
Will the long-standing desire of the people of the mandal be fulfilled when the work is completed..?

Mahabubabad District, Telangana Essence October 27 : The Telangana government has laid the foundation stone for the Telangana Public School to be constructed at a cost of Rs. 7.50 crore in Nellikuduru mandal center of Mahabubabad constituency. To this end, Government Whip, Dornakal MLA Dr. Jatoth Ramachandra Nayak, Mahabubabad MP Porika Balaram Nayak, MLA Dr. Bhukya Murali Nayak, District Collector Sneha Shabarish, DCC President Dr. Uma Murali Nayak along with many officials, public representatives and Congress party leaders participated in the foundation stone laying ceremony.

The establishment of a Telangana Public School in the Nellikuduru mandal center has been a long-standing desire of the local people.

Parents and local people are hopeful that with the foundation stone laying ceremony for the construction of this school, better educational opportunities will be available to the students. It is believed that this school will be useful in providing quality education in government schools and providing better educational facilities to students in rural areas.

Work should not be limited to laying the foundation stone

However, the people of the mandal want the government to immediately sanction the necessary funds and start the construction work, not just laying the foundation stone. They hope that the work will be expedited without delay in the release of funds and the school building will be completed and made available to the students within the stipulated time. They believe that the hopes of the local people will be fulfilled only when this process, which started with the foundation stone laying ceremony, takes shape and the school becomes available.

The existing educational premises should be used efficiently

There is also a discussion going on locally about setting up a Telangana Public School in the premises where there is currently a government school and a junior college and making efficient use of the available educational facilities. People are demanding that a clear plan be drawn up regarding the establishment of the school and the management of the existing educational institutions and steps be taken to ensure that students do not face any difficulties.

In total, the construction of the Telangana Public School, which will be undertaken at a cost of Rs. 7.50 crore, becomes beneficial for the education sector of Nellikuduru Mandal. The government needs to pay special attention to the release of funds, progress of construction work, and management of the educational institutions. The local people hope that this program, which started with the foundation stone laying, will be completed quickly and the Telangana Public School will become a center for providing quality education to the students of the mandal.

MP Vem Narender Reddy's Visit Sparks Action: Six-Month-Pending Road Works Completed in 24 Hours

Movement among officials with the visit of the public representative.. If they had responded earlier, the people would have avoided all these troubles!

Mullangi Mohan Reddy Telangana Essence Mahabubabad District Correspondent October 27: The development of road works in Kesamudram has once again led to a discussion about how important the initiative of officials is in solving public problems. Road works that have not progressed for about six months have suddenly gained momentum with the visit of Rajya Sabha member Vem Narender Reddy. The fact that the works that had not been completed for months were completed within a few hours during his visit has caused an interesting discussion locally.

The end of a six-month wait within hours!

It is reported that the local people have faced difficulties due to the long pending road works in Kesamudram. Dissatisfaction is being expressed over the non-completion of the works undertaken as part of creating the necessary infrastructure for the people on time. However, after the visit of Rajya Sabha member Vem Narender Reddy on Tuesday, the work was speeded up and completed within a few hours. Locals are expressing surprise that the work that had been going on at a snail's pace for years was completed so quickly with the visit of a public representative. They are of the opinion that if the authorities had shown this level of initiative earlier, the people would not have had to face difficulties for so many days.

Not only during visits.. This same initiative should be shown regularly!

There are opinions that the authorities should take steps to ensure that the infrastructure works needed by the people such as roads, drainages, drinking water and other facilities are completed within the stipulated time, regardless of the visits of public representatives. Locals state that better services can be provided to the people by monitoring the progress of the work from time to time, identifying the reasons for the delay, and increasing coordination between the relevant departments.

While on the one hand, the fact that work that had been stalled for months was completed in a few hours raises questions about the performance of the officials, on the other hand, there are opinions that development works would have progressed faster if there was continuous monitoring by public representatives.

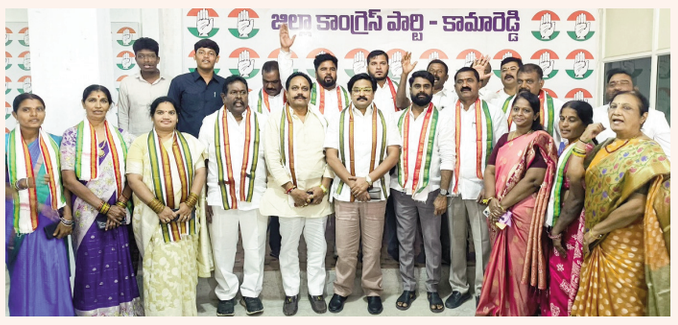

Hopes for more development works in Kesamudram

Locals and political parties are expressing hope that if Rajya Sabha member Vem Narender Reddy stays in Kesamudram for some more time and focuses on local problems and development works, more problems will be solved.

There is a local discussion that it is the responsibility of the officials to complete the works needed by the people on time, and it is commendable that public representatives identify the problems and take the initiative to solve them. However, the main aspiration of the people is that the officials should work with the same sincerity even on normal days, without waiting for the visits of public representatives to complete such works quickly.

What the people want is not just guarantees.. but development works that are completed on time and immediate solutions to problems. This development in Kesamudram has once again opened the door to discussion on the functioning of the bureaucracy and the resolution of public problems.

El Niño and Water Crisis: Halt the Establishment of Large-Scale AI Data Centres

The Human Rights Forum demands that the Telangana government suspend the implementation of existing commitments to establish data centres and refrain from making any new commitments until publicly accessible studies establish that the water and electricity requirements of large-scale Artificial Intelligence (AI) data centres will not adversely affect drinking water needs, agriculture and environmental protection. All existing and proposed data centres must be assessed comprehensively, taking their cumulative impact into account. The process must include public consultation and impose enforceable limits on the consumption of natural resources.

At a time when Chief Minister A. Revanth Reddy has repeatedly warned of the impact of El Niño and an impending water crisis, his government's promotion of large-scale AI data centres is deeply contradictory. Even as the state faces severe water scarcity, the government is seeking to establish massive computing facilities that will place additional pressure on already strained water and electricity resources. This is a decision that demonstrates a serious lack of foresight.

The Chief Minister himself has warned that the state may not be in a position to provide water for agriculture in the coming months. He has also urged farmers to postpone one cropping season to conserve drinking water. Furthermore, he has cautioned that ensuring an adequate supply of drinking water to the public could itself become difficult. Reports have also emerged that the Hyderabad Metropolitan Water Supply and Sewerage Board (HMWSSB) has declared a water emergency.

A government that cannot ensure water for agriculture or even guarantee adequate drinking water for its people should not be inviting large-scale AI data centres that consume enormous quantities of water. Farmers in Telangana lack water, and the public does not have sufficient water to meet its needs, yet the government appears willing to ensure abundant supplies for major technology corporations. This reversal of priorities exposes the hollowness of the government's claims that it works in the public interest.

Large-scale AI data centres are not ordinary industrial establishments. Their enormous computing operations require vast amounts of electricity. They also need sophisticated cooling systems to dissipate the heat generated by these operations. Such systems can consume significant quantities of water. Moreover, the water used in generating the electricity required by these data centres must also be included when calculating their overall water footprint.

The actual impact depends on the cooling technology employed, operating conditions and the availability of water and electricity resources. The HRF believes that these impacts must be assessed independently rather than concealed behind assurances made by corporate entities.

To justify these projects, the government may refer to water recycling, the use of treated wastewater and designs intended to achieve net-zero water consumption. However, such claims cannot substitute for transparent studies examining actual water consumption, seasonal water availability and competing demands for this vital resource. Investment and technological prestige must not be given precedence over people's basic needs and the protection of local ecosystems. The electricity requirements of these large-scale AI data centres are equally concerning. Telangana is not a power-surplus state, and pressure on electricity supply is already increasing. Allocating enormous quantities of electricity to these facilities under such circumstances could aggravate existing problems. Competition for power will intensify among households, agriculture and other productive sectors. Farmers are already experiencing interruptions in electricity supply during the crop season.

Despite these concerns, the government is planning to establish AI data centres with a capacity of 5 gigawatts (GW) by 2029. These facilities will operate continuously, 24 hours a day, and assurances have reportedly been made that they will receive power from two electricity grids. The government must explain how this additional demand for electricity can be met without disrupting the energy requirements of other sectors across the state.

We fail to understand what tangible benefits the public will receive from allocating valuable land, water and electricity resources to infrastructure primarily intended to meet the computing requirements of large domestic and international technology corporations.

The government makes sweeping claims about the substantial economic benefits these massive investments will bring. However, such highly capital-intensive facilities are likely to generate only a limited number of permanent jobs. Meanwhile, the environmental costs of these potentially destructive mega-projects will ultimately be borne by local communities.

The equitable distribution of scarce water resources is a fundamental responsibility of the state government. A government that warns farmers of impending hardships and acknowledges uncertainty over drinking water supplies cannot reasonably welcome industries that consume enormous quantities of natural resources. This policy raises serious questions: Whose interests is the government prioritising? And at whose expense does it intend to fulfil those interests?

The basic needs of the people must take precedence over the expansion ambitions of major technology corporations. In a state struggling with water scarcity, the question is not merely how to establish large-scale AI data centres in an environmentally sustainable manner. The more fundamental question is whether establishing them at all is justified.

Keerthy Suresh's Struggles After Mahanati

Keerthy Suresh is one of the talented actresses in Indian cinema. Her performance in Mahanati received huge appreciation from audiences and critics. However success of this film also brought unexpected challenges to her career.

The actress recently revealed that she did not receive any new film offers for six months after the release of Mahanati. Released in 2018, Mahanati was a biographical film based on the life of legendary actress Savitri. Keerthy played the lead role and she won the National Film Award for Best Actress for the film.

Before Mahanati, Keerthy mostly played simple, girl-next-door characters. After the film's success, directors started looking at her differently. They found it difficult to decide what kind of roles would suit her next. As a result, Keerthy did not receive new projects for around six months. This was an unexpected situation for an actress who had been busy working on several films.

In a recent interview, Keerthy spoke about this difficult period. She explained that she initially welcomed the break because she had been working continuously for several years. However, she later realised that the gap was affecting her financial stability. Between 2013 and 2018, the actress said she spent most of her time shooting for films. Her daily routine mainly involved working, eating and sleeping. She hardly found time to focus on herself.

Everyone The sudden break gave her an opportunity to change this routine. However, the lack of film offers made her understand the importance of managing money and planning for uncertain periods in the film industry. Meanwhile this words proved that a blockbuster film does not always make a heroine's career safe in the film industry. Keerthy Suresh is a perfect example of this. After the huge success of Mahanati, the film's success did not guarantee a steady flow of new opportunities. She revealed that she did not receive any film offers for six months after the movie's release, and this also affected her financial stability.

A successful film can help a hero build a stronger market and attract more projects, while heroines may still struggle to find suitable roles even after delivering a blockbuster.

Meanwhile Keerthy is now preparing for her upcoming Netflix series Akka, which also stars Radhika Apte. Set in the 1980s, the story follows a powerful group of women whose world faces a major threat after the arrival of an outsider. The series is scheduled to premiere on Netflix on October 30, 2026.
